

MILL MEET ON THE GRIDIRON

GOLDFIELD AND MILLERS TO HAVE GAME OF FOOTBALL.

Millers and Goldfield are going to meet on the gridiron. The former town boasts of some of the best football players in the country round, all men who have been in the game, fresh from college, and anxious for a go at the national sport. There are no less than six ex-captains at Millers.

In compliment to the boys of the mill town, the first game will be played at Millers, and the date will be on the Sunday preceding Thanksgiving day. Now, Goldfield boasts of a few kickers herself, and there are a few dollars which have escaped the general hoarding, which are ready to be balanced on the decision of the game. On Thanksgiving day there will be a return match played in Goldfield, where there will be more kicking than has ever been seen in this country. On with the game—both games.

CATLIN KEEPING UP ITS RECORD

SILVER BOW PROPERTY MAKES ITS FOURTH SHIPMENT OF ORE.

The Catlin group in Silver Bow, recently purchased by Bert L. Smith and his associates, is keeping up the reputation of the district. Today the fourth shipment will go out from the mine, and the ore will average close to $150 a ton.

"There will be about twenty-five tons go out in this shipment," said Mr. Smith last night, "and this will perhaps be the last that we can ship out this winter. The stuff will go to Murray. To be sure it is not a big shipment, but it means money, and we believe in getting the money as fast as possible. What is needed mostly in Silver Bow is a mill, and then other mills, and that is what is going in there just as soon as conditions warrant."

"We will keep the mine open all winter, and the promise of a big mine is very good. Besides the shipping ore, we have milling ore, and that is what counts in any camp. The ore is now changing to a sulphide, and at the bottom of our shaft we have nine feet, the average of which is $30.02. That is a splendid showing for a milling proposition."

SPECIAL SESSION OF GRAND JURY

District Attorney Pat McCarran has called a special session of the grand jury for 11 o'clock on Friday morning, at which there will be a general clearing up of the county's criminal business. There are a great many accused men in jail who have been held before the grand jury, and the jail will either be cleared or the accused will have to go to trial. There is some new business also to come before the inquisitors, and it is promised that there will be plenty of work for the body.

ROBBERY THAT IS MOST PUZZLING

GRIS RETURN HOME TO FIND THEMSELVES MINUS VALUABLE WARDROBE.

The police have a mystery, it is a robbery mystery. Robberies are common enough in some places, but it is seldom that such an outrage is perpetrated in this city, and the question is: "Who did it?"

Wait a minute. Of course that is the mystery to be solved in all such cases, but this is a case that runs the gamut from daring to sneak-thievery, and reeks with revenge and spite-work—woman's spite-work. Two pretty girls were the victims of the robbers, and the articles taken were such as to appeal only to a woman—lingerie, silk hosiery, toilet articles, jewelry, and a maddening list of dainty, pretty, fluffy underwear.

Miss Gladys Lane, who is noted on the rialto for her smart gowns, her wonderful hats, her beautiful face and figure, was one of the victims; graceful, willowy, Willa Linette was the other. The girls were living alone together, or perhaps it would be better to say, they were living together alone, in a stone cabin of two rooms on Center street. Miss Linette makes music while you wait on the dear old harpsichord in the rooms of the Richelieu. Her voice has swelled and thrilled often as the tempting viands of the Richelieu have been undergoing service. Lulled by the dulcet tones many a man has lost his appetite, and has been content to drink in the sweet music in lieu of wine, and pay for the wine besides.

Miss Lane is very fond of music, and also of the musician, and she waited for her in the morning of yesterday. How glad she was that she waited. The two lone girls went their way, happy and content, and entered Miss Linette's room first. The latter was in the lead, and she felt over something. Her companion quickly turned up the electric light, that costly luxury, and horrors!

The singer had fallen over her own clothes. They were piled in a heap on the floor, not artistically piled, but just thrown. A glance sufficed to show that robbers had been there; and Gladys dallied long enough to take a peep at her apartment. Yes, they had been there, too. It was enough. The two girls ran into the street screaming at the top of their voices. Then they ran to the police station. Two minutes later they were running up Brougher avenue with Lieutenant White of the police force.

What a sight those two rooms were. There was nothing left in the room of Miss Linette but a few articles of clothing that she was keeping for a rainy day, or they would have done in the snow. The robbers had completely gutted the room and had turned over the bed clothing in their quest for money.

Miss Gladys Lane's room looked as if a cyclone had passed through it. She had a beautiful hat with a gorgeous plume. They hadn't taken that, but they had done worse; they had jumped on it, and kicked it, and crushed it, and torn the feathers out of it, and left it a sad sight. The mark of a woman's heel was plainly visible, and if the woman doesn't throw her shoes away, they may lead to her detection.

But that was only one thing. A toilet set, one of the handsomest in town, had lain upon the dresser; every bit of silver of it was gone, easily $150 worth. Silk hose by the bundle, costly laces from Brussels and Limeric, gloves, slippers, shoes, the daintiest of lingerie, silk waists, handsome skirts, corsets, jewel boxes, stationery, postal cards, letters that the girls had stacked away—those of Miss Linette had been read and thrown upon the floor; Miss Lane's had been carted away. And the crowning indignity—the picture of Miss Lane had been turned to the wall.

The police have a theory, and the girls have a theory. They have also new apartments, for they would not spend another night in the stone cabin. Every train that leaves town is being watched, and if the spiteful thieves get away with their plunder, it will not be the fault of Chief of Police Malley, and his band of trusty sleuths. Meantime, there are two pretty girls, heartbroken over the disappearance of their pretty things, and all they want is a chance to get their pretty fingers into the hair of the woman at the bottom of it all.

REFUSED TO CASH CHECKS. The bank at Sparks last Saturday refused to cash the $100,000 in checks which the Southern Pacific railroad paid to its construction employees. The railroad immediately issued an order to the effect that money would be sent in a special car and all the checks cashed.—Nevada State Journal.

PROMISED ANOTHER DRAMATIC TREAT

MANAGER AYLESWORTH WILL PRESENT "THE LIEUTENANT AND THE COWBOY."

Lovers of the drama are promised another treat on next Tuesday, when Mr. Aylesworth will present at the pavilion, one of the latest eastern successes, "The Lieutenant and the Cowboy." This will introduce Mr. Theodore Lorch and a company said to be much above the average. The play, itself, deals with phases of western life, interwoven with a pretty love romance.

From all that has been heard of the play, it is far removed from the ordinary western production. It is much higher in tone, and introduces a number of distinct characters. The company carries its own scenery and is coming here under heavy expense. For the reason of the high class of the people and their scenic accessories, and the consequent expense of travel, the management is going to increase the price of admission to 50 cents, $1 and $1.50.

DEATH OF AN AGED WOMAN

The body of Mrs. L. Welsh, who died yesterday, will be shipped tomorrow morning to Modoc county, California. Mr. Welsh was the mother of George Wiley, a well known mining man of Silver Bow, and an extensive property owner in this city. She had been suffering from heart failure, owing to her advanced age, and last week she contracted a cold, which hastened her death.

INCREASED FORCE AT THE SHOSHONE

November for the Shoshone promises to be a record breaker for both tonnage and values. Slowly but steadily the force of men at both mine and mill is being increased, says the Rhyolite Bulletin, and it will be only a short time until the full capacity of the plant will be reached. The mill at present is said to be handling about 125 tons per day and the usual amount of high grade smelting ore is being loaded daily. Besides this a big car of concentrates was loaded yesterday which will easily run $400 per ton. This is the second shipment of the kind since the mill started.

It is also reported that a battery of stamps will be installed in a short time to assist the rollers in crushing the ore.

It was reported yesterday that the 40-horsepower gasoline hoist at the Gibraltar shaft, at the south end of Bonanza mountain will be moved to the All Baba workings in a short time and that extensive development will be started on the latter ground. The All Baba shaft is at present being worked with a whim, but the depth is too great for effective work, and a hoist will be installed.

PEOPLE ADVISED AS TO DRAFTS

ALL REMITTANCES OR CHECKS MUST BE MADE ON SAN FRANCISCO.

Anybody who has any business with San Francisco must send checks or drafts drawn on San Francisco banks. In this regard the following circular has been received: "BOARD OF TRADE OF SAN FRANCISCO.

"As the banks of San Francisco will not accept for deposit checks on interior banks, the merchants of this city, through the board of trade of San Francisco, request that all remittances to them be made by checks or drafts drawn on San Francisco banks.

"By order of the board of directors.

TURNING OUT THE BEST WORK

The bindery of the Bonanza is turning out the best work in the city, and it is giving such great satisfaction that anyone who has his work done there once, never goes anywhere else. The plant is the finest and most complete, not only in the State, but this side of San Francisco. We can turn out all kinds of work that is demanded in the offices of lawyers, brokers, promoters, mining companies, or for any other kind of business, and we guarantee satisfaction in every respect. One trial will be sufficient to establish the truth of this statement. It pays to go where only the best kind of work is done, and it pays to patronize home industry.
